Nationals Lose the Morning Game, But Win Afternoon Combat, 6 to 4

Harper Drops Tough 1-to-o Battle-Griffmen Pound Fisher Out of Box and Grab the Final Frolic-Capt. McBride Back In Harness Again.

Winning the morning game I to o from the Nationals yesterday made it seven in a row for the New York nkees, but this streak was summarily halted in the afternoon when the Griffmen turned the tables, 6 to 4.

Shawkey and Harper had a fierce tussle for the long end of the score during the breakfast cabaret and Shawkey got the verdict when his club pulled down a run in the ninth inning by bunching a couple of hits, together with some slow thinking on the part of First Baseman Joe Judge

The afternoon frolic brought together Ray Fisher and Bert Gallia. Fisher usually beats the Nationals, but he displayed nothing with which to fool them yesterday and retreated under heavy fire in the third inning after six runs had been scored. Allan Russell, who relieved Fisher, checked the scoring, and had this young man been in the box when the game opened, another story might have been written.

Ideal weather brought out two big crowds and the Nationals did not lack for support.

George McBride, who has been suspended for three days on account of his scrap with Pitcher Mays, of the Boston Red Sox, was reinstated just before the morning game, It was McBride's slam for three bases during the afternoon contest which virtually settled matters, and in addition he went through both games without the semblance of an

Four times this season Harper has faced the Yankees, and on every start the young southpaw has failed to survive. Yesterday was his fifth attempt. He stuck to the bitter end, which came in the ninth, and the score, I to o, shows that he put up a gallant fight.

Morning Game.

Joe Judge presented the New York Joe Judge presented the New York Yankees with the morning game when he handed them the winning run on a silver platter. Judge apparently lost his head, and strolled over to Foster's territory when Pipp hit an easy grounder at Foster, which would have been the final out. Pipp got to first base before Judge could return to the bag for Foster's throw. This happened in the ninth inning and High, who was on third at the time, scored the only tally of the game.

Will Be Nominated to Do the Pitching. Harper and Shawkey were the principals of a pitching duel. Harper was hit oftener than the New Yorker, but the run which the Yanks scored never should have been permitted, and in the overtime scramble which would have followed, Washington's chances to win were just as good as those of the visitors. Four measley hits were all that Shawkey allowed-no wonder the Griff-Shawkey allowed—no wonder the Griffmen are not scoring runs for their pitcherers—the club seems to have lost entirely the little punch it formerly possessed.

Once again the big playing field here demonstrated that Baker and Pipp are not to be feared away from the Polo Grounds. Pipp got credit for a cheap single and Baker doubled in the ninth, but on other occasions when these gentlemen were up in a pinch they were promptly sent back to the plate.

As was the case on Monday, the Griffmen had plenty of chances to put over runs, but Shawkey, like his teammate Caldwell, permitted no libertiee when cracks meant chalks.
